Carpets and Rugs Curtains and Draperies

Our Present Exposition Unparalleled in Extent or in Splendor of Its Offerings.

Of all things that contribute to the grace of the home, of all things that aid either in rendering it simply and inexpensively ornate or in giving it the richer and more abounding and more pretentious splendors of the loveliest and most glorious of gardens, nothing can take precedence of the fabrics that dress and beautify the floors. All the furniture in the house derives an elegance from elegant rugs or participates in the ignominy of shabby rugs. The trees in the park would be defective and imperfect ornaments but for a spread of lawn beneath. Nothing can make the landscape divinely and sovereignly beautiful without a delicate ground, without green fields. And the gorgeous sideboard, bookcase, cabinet, library table and shining parlor chairs lose half their comeliness and charm on bare floors. John M. Smyth Company believe that nothing can be too pretty for the floors of modest homes, nothing too lavishly or brilliantly ornamental for the floors of opulent homes, and the display of rugs and carpets now proving of such interest to housekeepers is unparalleled either in general volume of new goods, in wealth of rare fabrics and gorgeous patterns or in range of styles and endless variety of offerings:

Magnificent Array of Early Summer Offerings in These Dainty Home Embellishments.

No branch of modern home furnishings is more appealing to the pride of intelligent and refined housekeeping than those that dress the doors or grace and adorn the windows. Our department of curtains and draperies, unequalled either in area of broad, cheerful, sunlit floors, or in wealth and variety of beautiful fabrics exhibited, has long been known to the community as one of the principal attractions of the largest and most brilliantly appointed furniture store in the world. And in keeping with the popular expectations of the department, the entertainment for visitors this week will be a display of new goods and new fashions, unprecedented in extent and adapted to every requirement from the mansion to the cottage or apartment. And every offering a bargain:
